A Tribute To The World's Greatest Entertainers

Sinatra & Friends

2021 Tour

The “Sinatra & Friends” show is getting rave reviews from the public and critics alike with sold-out theatres in Germany and beyond. The three Brits Stephen Triffitt, Mark Adams and George Daniel Long (alias Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr.) are giving the public the opportunity to experience the greatest show legends of all time, also known as the famous, not to say infamous “rat pack”, live on stage. The hit show was back in early March 2020, but had to be interrupted in the middle of the month. Now the "Sinatra & Friends" tour will continue in September and October 2021 in Germany. The company will also be calling in on Sweden and Norway for the first time.

The early 60s was the rat pack's time – and Las Vegas was their town. It was there that Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. made films and gave countless concerts. At that time Sinatra, Martin and Davis Jr. were already the country's most popular and high-profile entertainers. Marlene Dietrich called Frank Sinatra “the Mercedes Benz of men”. The live joint performances by these three show legends, preferably at the Sands Hotel, were the showbiz attraction at the gambling paradise of Las Vegas and an absolute magnet for the public. The combination of cabaret-style dialogue between the entertainers and their public and performances of their world-famous songs also marked the birth of modern entertainment.

The three performers Stephen Triffitt (Frank Sinatra), Mark Adams (Dean Martin) and George Daniel Long (Sammy Davis Jr.) are exceptionally talented in their own right and far more than simply dead ringers for the three show giants. In “Sinatra & Friends”, their knowing political incorrectness, unmistakable big band swing, beautiful women and the obligatory whisky glass in their hand
